Brown's Everblooming

IRIS

Gardens

1956

Dr. G. Percy Brown
Barre, Mass.

Foreword

I am writing my 1956 catalog as I look out on a wintry landscape. It is cheering to think that on June 1, my iris garden will begin to bloom. The best bloom will be about June 10. Summer and fall bloom will begin in August on a few kinds and reach a climax in October. Last year a heavy frost came October 20 which is the earliest I can remember. Usually a heavy frost comes the first week in November.

My garden is in the town of Westport, Mass., on the main road two miles from Westport Point. I have an iris sign at my garden. Visitors are always welcome.

My hobby is hybridizing for reblooming iris. The January 1956 bulletin of the American Iris Society has an article on hybridizing for reblooming iris which I wrote.

My three introductions for 1956 are Fall Primrose, Autumn Bronze and Summer Surprise. Fall Primrose bloomed from September 23 to October 22 on nine stalks and is extra fine. Autumn Bronze is a new color and bloomed well in October. Summer Surprise is the tallest rebloomer I have with the most buds and is a very vigorous grower. Detailed descriptions follow.
